By James Caplan

MIDTOWN, New York: The Asian American Federation (AAF) celebrated in style on Friday night at its annual Golf Classic. The event featured entertainment, food, and a goede silent auction.

The evening started with a cocktail hour where attendees mingled and enjoyed drinks while listening to live music. Following the cocktail hour, everyone toasted to the success of the event before moving on to the dinner and awards ceremony. AAF President Andrew Chang welcomed everyone and presented the organization's annual awards to deserving recipients.

The highlight of the evening was the raffle, which included a range of items such as luxury travel packages, Signed copies of bestselling authors, and tickets to exclusive events. Attendees eagerly awaited the draw of the winning numbers, which was announced at the end of the evening.

The event was a resounding success, exceeding AAF's fundraising goals. The proceeds from the Golf Classic will go towards supporting AAF's programs and initiatives, which aim to promote social justice and equal opportunities for Asian Americans.

AAF President Andrew Chang said, "We are thrilled to have raised such a significant amount of money tonight. These funds will enable us to continue our mission of advocating for the rights of Asian Americans and supporting our community. We are grateful to everyone who attended and contributed to the event."

TheAsian American Federation (AAF) is a New York-based 501(c)(4) organization dedicated to promoting the social, economic, and political well-being of Asian Americans. AAF serves as a voice for the Asian American community in New York City and advocates for policies that benefit all Americans.