From the Executive Director

Dear Friends,

Before the year ends, the Federation would like to share some news with everyone.

First, we would like to acknowledge how proud we are to have established a partnership with an extensive network of community organizations in New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia to insure a full and accurate count of Asian Americans in the decennial census, which came to a close on September 17, 2010.

More importantly, this year we were able to provide close to $1 million in grants for many agencies and also held our 2nd Annual Charity Bowl-A-Thon this fall to help those in need during this holiday season. We would like to send a warm thank you to all our supporters for always giving so generously. It is because of your giving hearts that the Federation is able to impact lives every day.

Happy Holidays everyone!

We look forward to an even more productive 2011!

Cao K. O

Federation Welcomes New Board Member, David Chung

On October 12, after an unanimous vote, the Board of Directors elected David Chung as a new member. Mr. Chung is the CEO of Englewood Lab LLC, a private research & development contract manufacturing company specializing in skin care and represents well-known brands such as Elizabeth Arden, Estee Lauder Group/Beauty Bank, Revive, and Strivectin. He is also Chairman and CEO of the cosmetic company 3LAB, Inc., which he founded in 2002. 3LAB products are sold in all Barney's New York stores, Nordstrom, Saks Fifth Ave dot com, and many upscale domestic and international perfumeries. The Federation welcomes Mr. Chung and looks forward to working with him.

2010 Census Outreach Partnership Summit

On September 17, the Federation hosted an all-day Census Convening at the Lighthouse International that officially brought a close to the Census 2010 Community Engagement Campaign. Partner organizations from NYC and New Jersey attended along with representatives from as far as Maryland, Philadelphia, and Buffalo, NY.

The Census Convening was a rare opportunity for all of our Census Partners to meet in one place and directly share lessons learned, collective challenges, and key highlights experienced along the way in helping our diverse communities get counted. It also allowed everyone to celebrate in the success of the Census Campaign that involved a total of $880,000 distributed to 36 community organizations, marking an unprecedented level of funding support to grassroots organizations in the Asian community for Census outreach and promotion in the New York region. During the reception, appreciation awards were distributed to everyone who helped make the Census Campaign a success.

The event was also attended by local elected representatives including Lorraine Cortes-Vazquez, Former NYS Secretary of State; Ruth Noemí Colón, Acting NYS Secretary of State; Peter Koo, Council Member, District 20; and Sandra Ung, representing Comptroller John Liu's office. The spirit of community support was evident and Lorraine Cortes-Vazquez added, "I was there to support the Asian American Federation in the past, and I will continue to support the Asian American Federation in the future."

The Convening served as a final cap to the Census Campaign, but it is not the end of the Census project. As a Census Information Center, the Federation is continuing the conversation and involving our community partners to ensure an even greater level of participation from our communities for the 2020 Census, as well as help our communities make sense of and use the data once the 2010 Census results are released next year.

Federation Partners with Member Agency, GCCA for Digital Connectors Project

In October 2010, the Federation partnered with one of our member agencies, The Greater Chinatown Community Association, to participate in the Digital Connectors Project. The Federation and GCCA recruited 15 students for training on digital media technology for two semesters at The State University of New York's Henry Street Settlement's AT-TAIN computer lab. During this time, these students are also required to give back by using their computer skills they acquired to teach other members in the community. At the end of this program, each student is rewarded with a brand new computer to help them practice and continue learning more technological skills.

The Digital Connectors Project is a national program launched in 2003 that helps underprivileged adolescents from the ages 14 to 21 years old gain more technological skills to help them work in the 21st Century work environment. This program has been such a success that it has expanded to over 3,000 youths all over the country in the past 7 years. The Federation hopes that this program will make a strong impact and be able to bring more Asian Americans up to speed on a technological advancing world.

Federation Appeals to Governor-elect Cuomo to Preserve Core Social Services

On November 9, four nonprofit organizations: United Way of New York State, UJA-Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, New York State Coalition for Children's Mental Health Services, and the Asian American Federation, held a press conference in Albany to call upon Governor-elect Andrew Cuomo to work alongside the charitable sector to preserve core services that focus on prevention, protection of the needy and vulnerable, and addressing the needs of working families. The recent economy has caused significant stress on these nonprofit agencies who have had to limit their aid to the needy due to an increase of people in need and limited financial funds. With a new governor in office, the nonprofit sector believes that in order to get through these economic hard times there has to be more government assistance to help citizens in distress, and requested four key reforms the governor should take into consideration to ensure the future availability of essential services:

1. Establish and appoint a cabinet level secretary to represent the charitable sector in the development of administrative policies and budgets that address issues that cut across state agency lines
2. Support elimination of years 2 and 3 of the cut to the deductibility of charitable contributions by wealthy wage earners
3. Pledge to uphold the Prompt Contracting Laws and stop late payments on contracts by streamlining contracting and oversight procedures which also save the state money
4. When making programs, spending and tax policy, frame decisions in a way that accounts for the value of the centuries-old charitable sector in New York State as a valued partner in services delivery

With these changes, the Federation and other nonprofit agencies believe that their government will be assisting them in the fight for helping those in need.

4th Annual AsiaNextGen Grant Awarded to Fight Hunger

This year, AsiaNextGen awarded a $20,000 grant to the Father's Heart Ministries to support their Hunger Prevention Program. The circle members chose to address poverty and hunger in our Asian American communities, especially because the grant would be available during the holiday season. AsiaNextGen decided to award Father's Heart Ministries after volunteering one Saturday morning and serving approximately 700 people a hot breakfast; noticing that 90% of the hungry were of Chinese decent.

On Nov 20th, three members from AsiaNextGen: Hai Chen Wang, Randall Chin, and Michelle Tong presented the $20,000 check to Marian Hutchins, Director of Community Resources & Development, and Carol Vedral, Executive Director. Also in attendance was New York State Councilwoman, Rosie Mendez. That morning, over 700 people were fed hot Thanksgiving meals by more than 50 volunteers because of the Father's Heart Ministries' Hunger Prevention Program which is funded by supporters like AsiaNextGen.

Incubated by the Federation, AsiaNextGen giving circle currently consists of 10 Asian American professionals collectively engaging in high impact philanthropy by strategically funding critical areas of interest to the community.

This is the 4th grant made by AsiaNextGen since their inception back in 2004. Their key goals are to impact social change, leverage monetary contributions, infuse expertise and skills with financial and intellectual capital, and to educate and grow a new generation of philanthropists. Since they are not yet a 501(c)(3), the Asian American Federation serves as its fiscal conduit. For more information please visit: www.asiannextgen.org
